ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE PROBE SOUGHT

THE SECRET ORGANIZATION HAS KEY TO U. S. TREASURY

Insidious Influence At Work House Resolution Charges — Attack Made For Political Effect In April Primaries, Says League Spokesman—With Both Branches of Congress In the Leagues Hands the Resolution Will Never See Daylight—

Charging the Anti-Saloon League with exercising an "insidious influence" over the treasury department in the appointment of prohibition enforcement officers, Representative Britten, Republican, Illinois, Saturday introduced a resolution to investigate the activities of that organization.

The inquiry was requested, the resolution said, because high officials of the league or its subsidiaries have been sent to prison for collecting money under false pretenses, and also because it has been shown that two high officials of one state were on the league's payroll while serving in their respective offices.

"Altho the resolution mentions no names," Britten said in a statement, "it refers indirectly to William H. Anderson, head of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, who has just completed a term in the penitentiary. It also refers indirectly to Justice Richard Hopkins of the state supreme court and Attorney General Charles B. Griffith, both of Kansas, who were credited with being on the payroll of the league after an investigation of the league's affairs in Topeka, Kansas."

The resolution would provide for appointment of a special congressional committee to conduct the inquiry and would authorize an appropriation of $50,000 to defray expenses.

"This expenditure is trivial," Britten said, "when compared with the $18,000,000 it will cost the taxpayers this year to enforce the silly Volstead law. The investigation would be of lasting benefit. It would settle the question whether the league was really operating within the law. If it is, it should have no fear of a thorough inquiry by an unprejudiced committee of both house and senate."

One of the declarations in the resolution reads:

"The welfare of the state and nation are jeopardized when public officials elected by the state to enforce all laws are receiving two salaries, one from the state and the other from an overpowering secret organization."

Others in part, said:

The league and its subsidiaries have raised large sums of money, the expenditure of which has not been made public.

The name adopted by the league is fraudulent and misleading. Its intention and purpose is complete prohibition and not alone to abolish the saloon.

Use of money by the league to influence public opinion in ways unsupervised by the American people.

Violation by the league and its subsidiaries of the national campaign contribution law and of state corrupt practices laws.

That the league paid campaign expenses of former Representative Andrew J. Volstead while he was chairman of the house judiciary committee which reported the dry law bearing his name.

Congressman Britten's attack on the Anti-Saloon League at Westerville, is being made for political effect in his home district, O. G. Christgan, educational secretary of the Anti-Saloon League, declared in a statement issued Saturday night.

"The Illinois primaries," Christgan said "came in April. A public attack on the Anti-Saloon League is a cheap and easy way for a candidate to pose in the limelight as very brave and very wet. Such attacks take the place of free beer in wet camp strategy to line up the fellows who always have been willing to trade a vote for a drink."

The Anti-Saloon League of Detroit, "has nothing to fear from investigations," declared Bishop Thomas Nicholson of the Methodist Episcopal church, president of the league, when informed Saturday of Representative Britten's resolution.

"The league has been able for 30 years to take care of its reputation and retain the confidence of the public," said Nicholson. "It has nothing to fear from investigations."

ARE YOU ELIGIBLE?

Judge Gary, in a recent speech, said a man to be successful in business must be absolutely clean and healthy mentally, morally and physically, his habits should be above reproach, he should know himself, study himself and look into his own heart and mind and conscience. He should be diligent, never intentionally negligent, keep his appointments punctually and fulfill his promises; up to date in everything pertaining to his occupation, fully informed, reasonable, fair, patient and have a good disposition toward every other person; he should make friends and avoid making enemies, he should not live for himself alone. He should acknowledge and practice the Golden Rule. He should be a loyal, patriotic citizen devoted to country, respectful to public officials and faithful in the observance of all laws so long as they exist, not talk too much, weigh every word he says, be patient and wise and absolutely honest.—Scottish Rite Progress.

FOX CHASE.

The vicinity of Yellowbud was stirred Friday morning by the tangoing of 30 hounds when they were turned loose in the bottoms east of the village and in a very short time they had six Reynards scampering south toward Deer creek. The chase was delightful to about 150 people, who were present and all are preparing to go back February 22, when they expect to turn fifty hounds loose for the sport.

DISTILLER ARRESTED.

Fred Webster was placed under arrest at his home in South Bloomfield Sunday by Sheriff Young and Deputies Irwin and Littleton. A charge of being intoxicated and having liquor in his possession was placed against him. A copper boiler and eight gallons of mash was found in his home by the officers.

Old Tires Salvaged Because of High Rubber Prices

The high price of rubber has created a brand new industry—the salvaging of discarded automobile tires—and huge shipments of the ancient tires are being made frequently from Pacific coast ports. The tires are melted up and the resulting rubber used over again. Above is seen a shipment being loaded onto a steamship at San Diego, Cal.

Cleveland — As the second week's investigation of alleged jury tampering in the trial and conviction of Josiah Kirby of the Cleveland Discount company, got underway today, the following developments had been recorded: Four indictments had been voted, one of which was secret.

Among those indicted were two attorneys and a former politician.

Columbus — One minor was killed and 24 injured, ten seriously, when an explosion wrecked the main entrance of the Cleveland & Western company's new mine at Powhattan, Belmont county this morning according to information received by the state bureau of miners here.

Six hundred workmen entered the mine for the day shift at 7 a. m., the bureau was advised. All of them with the exception of those injured, escaped unhurt, reports to the bureau declared.

STOCKHOLDERS PLEASED WITH NEW GAS WELL

R. L. Brehmer, Homer Fullen, S. M. Cryder Sr., Frank Hamilton, W. L. Mack, Harold Hott, Charles H. Smith and Albert Crist went down to South Bloomfield Sunday morning to witness the shooting of a gas well.

The well is located on land leased by the South Bloomfield Gas and Oil company, composed of South Bloomfield and Circleville stockholders who have financed the expense of digging a hole and the casing was tapped Sunday. The well has a good flow, the rock pressure showed three-quarters of a million feet of gas which if the flow keeps up will be worth $75 a day to the producers. The company has 375 acres of land leased in the vicinity. The stockholders are much elated. In the neighborhood are wells that have been flowing continuously for ten years.

DAYTON FIRE LOSS REACHES THE MILLION

Flames Broke Out in Home Store and Spread Rapidly — Several Firm Suffered.

Dayton, O., Feb. 15, (UP).— Fire originating in the Home store at midnight entailing a loss estimated at $1,000,000 was under control shortly after daylight today.

The lower floor of the Home store, was in flames when discovered by a policeman and spread rapidly to each of the four floors above attacked the 14 story American building at the corner of Third and Main streets and ate its way around this building into the Home store annex on Main street adjoining the city hall.

For a time it seemed that both the American building and the City hall would go with the three 4-story building occupied by the Home store. However, the fire was brought under control and some of the fire fighting apparatus was dismissed.

Ten or twelve business firms sustained a direct fire loss and others were damaged by smoke and water. Sections of the rear wall of the Home store caved in on the North Market street side. At 4:30 a. m. the second floor also caved in. The upper floors crashed down previously. Altho the fire was practically extinguished at dawn a large force of fire fighters remained at the scene pouring water on the burning embers.

During the height of the flames fifteen streams of water were poured into them from the upper floors of the American building from the roof of the Adler and Childs store, which is owned by the Home store company and is separated from that store by a fire wall and from the windows and roof of the City building.

CHURCH CALLS PASTOR.

At a meeting of the Presbyterian congregation following Sunday morning services a vote was taken on the selection of a minister. A call was extended to Rev. Emil Tonsmeir, of Youngstown, who has been executive secretary of the Youngstown presbytery for a number of years.

ATTENDANCE FOR ALL FARM WEEKS IS 54,661.

More than 50,000 Ohio farmers have attended the annual Farmers' week, sponsored each winter by the Ohio State university. Attendance at the fourteenth annual Farmers' week, which ended last Friday, brought the total to 54,661, according to records in the office of Dean Alfred Vivian of the college of agriculture. Attendance at the 1926 Farmers' week was the fifth best in the 14 years, despite unfavorable weather. Registration last week was 5005, as against an initial attendance at the first Farmers' week in 1913 of 140, and an average for the 14 years of 3904.

STAND OF OUR COMMITTEEMAN IS COMMENDED

Organization Indorses Action of Curtis Randolph and Candidates.

At a meeting of the county Republican central committee held Saturday afternoon, the action of Curtis Randolph, of New Lexington, member of the state central committee, in opposing the pre-primary convention plan of the state committee last week was approved.

It seems that at this meeting held in Columbus just 13 of the 22 members were present and of this 13 there were seven in favor of the pre-primary convention, while six were against it. After the session it was stated that the proposal was indorsed by all the members present and this statement was broadcasted all over the state.

It developed later that in the meeting six of the 13 were opposed to the pre-primary convention and that the member from this district was one of those in opposition, at least until such time as it could be held under legal sanction. The Pickaway county committee unanimously commended Mr. Randolph for his stand in the matter.

The county committee also indorsed Thad H. Brown for the Republican nomination for governor, Joseph E. Cross for secretary of state and John M. Vorys and C. C. Chapplear for re-nominations as state senators.

NEWS ABOUT COURT HOUSE

General Happenings Taken From the Records of the Various County Offices.

BRACING TREES NOW PREVENTS LOSS LATER

Apple and other trees may be examined during the winter and, where limbs are weakened by heavy fruiting, weak crotches, or winter injury, effectively braced to prevent splitting. Several methods of bracing depending upon the size of the limbs to be supported are suggested by F. S. Howlett, assistant in horticulture at Ohio Experiment Station.

Where two opposite limbs of a crotch are to be fastened together, the most desirable way, he says, is to bore a hole through each of the limbs several feet from the crotch depending upon the size and angle of the limbs. Ring bolts or bolts with a hook on the end are inserted into the holes and anchored with a washer and nut on the outside of the limb. The limbs are then supported by several strands of heavy galvanized wire or cable put through the rings and twisted together.

With young trees it is best to fasten the wire with large screw eyes, or staples may be used if the limbs are not too large.

Where several limbs of about equal size are to be supported, the wires or cables from all may be fastened to a central ring which will take the strain in all directions.

Cows Lungs Cover City Lot

If THE spongy sacks which form the lung of a cow were spread out flat they would cover a city lot 50 by 170 feet, according to an estimate made by experts of the Larrowe Institute of Animal Economics. To keep this mass of flesh functioning normally, over 3,000 cubic feet of fresh air are required each hour, which, served to cows in buckets as is water and grain, would mean 320 three-gallon pailfuls every hour for each cow.

A cow needs air (oxygen) to purify her blood, to digest and assimilate feed and turn it into heat, body repairing material and milk. Add to the well-ventilated barn a plentiful supply of fresh water, good roughage and a correctly mixed dairy ration, and you have all the essentials for abundant milk making. It is this lack of fresh air on many farms during the long winter months that is believed by practical farmers to be the underlying cause for much of the sickness among the animals.

Prosperous Dairy Year Shown by Butter Prices

THE 1925 butter market reveals a prosperous condition in the dairy industry, according to the year-end agricultural review of the Larrowe Institute of Animal Economics. Although butter production during the first nine months of the past year seems to have lagged behind the corresponding period in the year previous, it was larger during the last quarter of 1925 than in the corresponding period of 1924. Beginning with October, receipts were the largest on record at this season of the year. For the year as a whole they were about 3 per cent less than in 1924.

Prices averaged higher than in 1924. The average wholesale price of 92 score creamery butter on the New York market in 1925 was approximately 45 cents a pound compared with 43 cents the year previous. Highest 1925 prices were received in October and November when weekly averages reached 52 and 51.5 cents, respectively.

Cow Works Three Months to Give Year's Milk for One Person

NINETY days of hard labor on the part of the average dairy cow will keep one person in milk for a year, according to the Larrowe Institute of Animal Economics. At least, it takes three months for her to turn out the 1,004 pounds of milk necessary to provide the fluid and canned milk, cheese, butter and ice cream consumed per capita per year.

While this fact may be merely interesting to the person consuming the milk, it is of vital importance to the dairyman who depends upon this milk for a living. For while the 4,398 pounds of milk produced by the average cow in a year will meet the requirements of a family of four persons, by the time one has figured up the cost of the feed that has gone into the production, there really isn't very much left. The only way to permanently increase the income per cow is in greater milk production per unit, government figures showing that when a cow's milk yield is doubled the profit is tripled, and when the yield is tripled the profit is increased almost five-fold. Experiments have proven that it is entirely possible by better feeding and management to increase the milk yield of the average cow to a point where three cows could supply four families with milk. To do this, however, the locus-pocus feeding so commonly practiced on many dairy farms will have to give way to more scientific methods. Comfortable quarters for the cows, an abundance of fresh water at all times, a plentiful supply of good hay and a properly balanced green ration are some of the things that go far toward securing greater profit per cow.

WHAT IS TO BE DONE?

"A very difficult question," the President calls the traffic casualties of the time. The figures that he cites—24,000 persons killed in a year upon the streets and highways of the country, and probably more than 500,000 injured. This means that over a period of the same length as our participation in the world war Americans are losing three-fourths as many lives on streets and roads as they lost to German bullets, and running up in addition a non-fatal casualty list thrice as great as they did abroad.

"The president has asked all the governors to appoint delegates to a national safety convention to assemble in March. While we know of no formula to meet the situation he has outlined the conference may write history by focusing public attention on the national aspects of a problem made up of a multitude of incidents at street corners and cross roads. Many communities are at work seeking and applying remedies.

The figures set forth in this article certainly ought to be a very convincing argument for

When you buy an article on the partial payment plan, the charge for carrying your purchase over an extended period of time is usually added right in with the cost. This item, no matter how cleverly concealed, is an interest charge just the same. Sometimes it is reasonable, and sometimes it is excessive; but most of the time it is unfair to you because it is always figured in favor of the seller. The sure way to get full value for your interest dollar is to borrow the money you need under the City Loan plan, and get the advantage of the cash price when you make your purchase. Devices That Reduce

Dangers of Aviation

Plans have been submitted to the air ministry by Capt. Frank T. Courtney, well known racing and test pilot, of a scheme to overcome the difficulties of flying in fog and to make regular services possible by night and day in practically any weather.

Captain Courtney points out that at certain times of the year aircraft transport is a farce, and much of its value is also lost because it is not possible to fly at night. The scheme now being put up, which has been evolved as a result of two years' work, is based on practical experience and is a combination of wireless and an adaptation of those modern instruments with which present-day planes are equipped.

Instead of flying by eye—which means that, when visibility is bad, a landing is necessary—pilots would fly entirely by instruments, and at Croydon there would be an aerial signal-box, from which instructions would be flashed across space by wireless. Pilots would be able to follow these instructions by means of their adapted instruments.—London Tit-Bits.

Tiger Holds Its Own

as Enemy of Mankind

The Indian tiger is the most successful member of the jungle in the contest with man, for, unlike its brethren it inflicts nearly as many casualties as it suffers. This is brought out by a return of the government of India, showing the mortality from wild animals and venomous snakes, writes a Calcutta correspondent of the London Post. Last year the total number of persons killed by wild animals in British India amounted to 2,587, as against 3,605 in the previous year. Tigers were responsible for 1,174 deaths, leopards for 406, wolves for 419, bears for 82, elephants for 41, and hyenas for 19. Deaths from snake bite fell from 19,990 to 19,867.

During the year 21,032 wild animals were reported to have been destroyed, of which 1,706 were tigers, 5,209 leopards, 2,799 bears and 1,743 wolves. A sum of 171,170 rupees was paid in rewards, against 165,367, rupees in the previous year.

Wonderful Woman

"Women succeed their husbands nowadays as governors, as senators, as mayors, and as traveling salesmen," said President Loeb of the Traveling Salesmen's National council at a dinner in New York.

"It reminds me of a story about a famous basso," he went on. "The basso had just died, and a tourist, visiting his native village in Tuscany, said to a Tuscan:

"So your great basso is dead. What a loss! Too bad, too bad!"

"Yeh," said the Tuscan, "it is too bad, but I suppose his wife'll carry on the business all right."

Money in Oil Wells

Of the 21,713 oil wells completed in the United States in 1924, it is said 2,250 turned out to be gas wells, while 5,152 went dry and did not produce oil in paying quantities. The cost of drilling the smallest of these wells was around $30,000 and in some instances the drilling ran as much as $175,000. A fair estimate of the money put into drilling oil wells in the United States places the total at $12,000,000,000, and the value of all oil recovered since the first well was sunk in 1859 has been placed at about $8,000,000,000.

Bear's Speed Stunt Fatal

Two large black bears put on a speed stunt with a fast train for pacer near Rinfret Junction, province of Quebec. Loping along the track in front of the train, the bears zig-zagged back and forth for a long distance. The train slowed down to 28 miles an hour to give the bears a sporting chance, but the erratic running of one of them resulted in his death before the engineer could stop.

Hardly Qualified Jurors

With only nine jurors, the court instructed the bailiff, at Toledo, Ohio, to pick up three more. The latter saw three men sitting in the rear of the courthouse. "Get into the jury box," he commanded. Spectators began to grin. So did the three men. They had just pleaded guilty to the charge of burglary. The court noticed the mistake in time and three other talesmen were selected before the trial began.

GRACE EPISCOPAL CHURCH OF POMEROY, OHIO,

Is Owned By Descendants of Valentine B. Horton, Who Served Ohio In Congress In 1850.

What is possibly the only church edifice in Ohio that is privately owned, is Grace Episcopal Church in Pomeroy, O., built at the expense of an early settler of that municipality, Valentine B. Horton, in 1833.

The edifice is of English Gothic design in architecture, the body of the church built of cut stone, being exactly like St. Philip's Episcopal Church, Circleville. When finished the church was given to his bride, Clara Pomeroy, by Mr. Horton.

Art glass memorial windows which came from England, were recently placed in the old church by the grandsons of deceased, who are keeping the building in repair.

Mr. Horton was first elected to congress in 1860. He was a member of the Ohio Constitutional convention in 1850 and the Peace Congress held in Washington in 1861.

An intimate personal friend of Mr. Horton says of him that he was a man of rare personal presence, tall, well-formed, erect and over all a noble head, a man of mark in any company. His face was fine, strong, mobile, expressive, his manner easy, self-possessed, deliberate, but not slow. Dignified in conversation, entertaining, courteous and gracious, and yet immovably firm in principle. In intellect, clear and comprehensive, grasping a multitude of details, but keeping to the essential point of surpassing ability in economic questions and practical enterprise.

And yet that fine pile of stone on the Ohio river, representing the love for his wife, remained the apple of his eye.

TELEPHONE NATION

The telephone is rapidly usurping the position formerly held by the telegraph in control of trains and transmission of railroad business.

Train orders are now being transmitted by telephone on more than 54 per cent of the railroads of the country.

Not only are telephones being used for transmission of train orders, but telephone stations are being installed on many roads at each signal bridge and siding, and are connected with adjacent interlocking or block stations, so that almost constant communication can be had by train crews, with headquarters.

Many railroads have also provided means by which observation cars on certain trains are connected with the city telephone service, so that a passenger up to the time the train leaves the station, may communicate with any point in the city.—The Manufacturer.

EVERGLADES AFIRE!

It was reported the other day that the heavy rains of last week had extinguished fires which were burning in the Everglades. These fires were not in the grass and trees of the Glades, but in the soil itself.

This bit of news is called to the attention of the editorial writer of the Ohio State Journal and others, who contend that the Everglades are below sea level and are swamps. Most swamps do not burn. It is because these particular lands will burn that they are becoming so valuable from an agricultural standpoint.

The soil in the Everglades is largely muck, of the richest type. It has been in process of creation for thousands of years, and it will furnish plant food for thousands of years to come. It is so largely composed of vegetable matter that it can be burned, just as peat is, but the same land that will burn will also produce potatoes and cane and corn and all kinds of truck, and forage grass that cannot be surpassed anywhere else on earth.

There is in these same Everglades a vast agricultural empire, the real development of which is just beginning, and which will help feed the nations of the world. It cannot be drowned out, and it will not be burned up. It is to be hoped that the next time the Ohio editor receives a Florida paper which is a little damp in one corner, he will understand that it is not because the Everglades are below sea level, but because a careless mail-carrier allowed a bit of Ohio snow to fall on the paper while he was carrying it to the Ohio State Journal office. —Miami Herald.

AN OLD-FASHIONED EDUCATOR

President Montgomery of Center College at Danville, Kentucky, declares he will not resign, if all the students pick up their traps and leave the school. Early in December groups of students had requested his resignation, it being understood at the time that the president was not as much obsessed with the athletic complex as the student body believed he should be.

President Montgomery seems to be an old-fashioned sort of an educator who still thinks the primary purpose of a college is to offer academic training and that the president and faculty of a school should have something to say about the government of the institution. He hasn't caught on to the up-to-date idea that a college's first duty is to produce a football team, and that the faculty should stand in the background and permit the students to run the school as they see fit.

It is very apparent that Dr. Montgomery is a back number in these respects. Likewise, he seems to have a goodly share of the spunk that characterized school executives in older days. His declaration that "Prexy" intends to be in the saddle if everybody goes home in reminiscent of the "professor" of a former age who, when some smart alec got fresh, mopped the floor of the school house with carcass of the challenger of his authority. There are a lot of college presidents in this country who wish they had the spine to defy the athletic craze, as the president of Center College has done. —Houston Post-Dispatch.

Paring His Expense Account

THE Risedales were at breakfast. Risedale had not been as cordial as usual.

"Anything the matter, dear?" asked Mrs. Risedale.

"Lots of things, always, Lavinia." "Well, what is the particular thing this morning? You look as though you were harboring an embryonic grudge. Better scotch it before it develops."

"I will. When I made you an allowance I asked you just how large it should be."

"Your memory is faulty, Benjamin. You asked me how small it should be. Not in those words, of course. What you really asked was that I should tell you the least I could get along with for personal expenses—how much a month. You said you had to have a lot of money at work in business. Am I right?"

"Your mind, Lavinia, is exact as to some details though a bit lax as to others. You haven't a shrewd business sense. I suppose you remember what you replied. 'My dear, you said as you said it—I think I can get along nicely on a thousand a month.'"

"I remember. And you were generous enough to respond: 'My dear, I'll make it $1,200 a month.' You've always been a liberal darling." She went over and kissed him, and then went back to her coffee.

"Thank you. But why should bills like this be sent to me?" He handed her a paper. "That calls for $150 for three hats. Aren't hats related to your personal expenses?" She looked at the bill. "But I was short, Benjamin. I had spent all my money. And the one thing you warned me about was my bank account. 'Never, in any case, overdraw,' you told me."

"I'm glad you remembered that. But you'll have to pay this bill out of your next month's allowance."

"Oh!" She thought a moment. "And I wanted to go shopping today!"

"I Saw a Policeman Standing by My Car."

"But tomorrow is the first of the month. Can't you postpone your excursion?"

She thought another moment. "It's a bargain sale. And tomorrow I might not find a bargain."

"Well, I'll lend you $100 until tomorrow." He wrote a check and passed it over. "But you must pay me from your allowance."

"What a dear you are! But I saved you $25 yesterday, so I'll pay you back $75."

"Saved me $25? How?"

"It was the funniest thing! But it proved that I have an alert business sense, though you say I lack it."

"I'm anxious to be convinced as to that."

"You know when you bought my limousine you said it was a present, and you agreed to keep it up if I would learn to drive it."

"Yes."

"Well, I went shopping yesterday."

"Another bargain sale?"

"No. Just shopping. Though I did buy a new costume. That's why I'm short."

"But how did you save me $25?"

"It was the strangest thing! I left my car in front of Blightley's, where I bought my costume. I was in the shop quite a while. When I came out, just as I was in the doorway, I saw a policeman standing by my car. I stopped, a little frightened. Thought something was wrong. I waited for him to go away."

"Just happened to be standing there, I suppose."

"I thought so, but he didn't go. Then I began to think. All at once the truth dawned on me."

"Well?"

"I remembered reading there is a fine of $25 for leaving a car within a certain distance of a fire plug."

"And you had violated the ordinance, of course."

"Well, there was a fire plug right by my car!"

"You got in bad, Lavinia. Paid the policeman, I suppose! That would be the woman's way."

"Wait. I took a street car home, leaving the policeman on guard. When I got home I called up police headquarters and told them my car had been stolen, giving them the number, etc."

"What a nerve, Lavinia!"

"Just good business, Benjamin. I waited a while, and they phoned that my car had been found standing in front of Blightley's and in an hour a policeman drove up with it."

"And that's—"

"Yes. That's the way I saved you $25, dear!"

AMUSEMENTS

Three things apparently go toward making a good motion picture. The story, the direction and the cast.

"Sally, Irene and Mary" at the Met theater has all three.

First the story which was suggested by the stage play which Ed. Dowling wrote and which was adapted to the screen by Hope Loring and Louis Leighton. It has a theatrical background that is full of interest for all and tells parallel stories of three girls who are in the musical show, "The Dainties."

There is Sally, who comes as near being a heavy as anyone in the picture. Yet she has many a redeeming feature as all heavies in life have.

Three Different Types.

There is Irene, the sentimental one. She is weak and is buoyed on by the influence of others.

And there is Mary who is a great little kid.

The three girls are friends at the theater. Away from there they lead widely different but contented lives.

But when their lives are interwoven it proves to be a disadvantage if anything. Sally stages a party at her luxurious apartment maintained for her by a wealthy admirer, where Mary and Irene get their first taste of luxury and unhappiness.

Irene's unlucky infatuation for an insincere worlding ends tragically in her death while recklessly eloping with another after he has thrown her over, and Mary narrowly averts a marriage to Sally's good natured but worthless millionaire friend.

The tense drama is relieved by some rare comedy scenes and the sweet, satisfying romance of Mary and her lower East Side sweetheart.

The direction, which was done by Edmund Goulding, is letter perfect. It runs smoothly from beginning to end and marks Goulding as one of the truly great directors of the screen. Mr. Goulding, himself, wrote the screen version of this Edward Dowling stage success.

An Excellent Cast.

The cast is ideal. Constance Bennett as Sally, Joan Crawford as Irene and Sally O'Neil as Mary, are perfectly suited to their respective roles. It would be impossible to select any one of them as the best for the parts they play are widely contrasted.

William Haines, Henry Kolker, Douglas Gilmore, Kate Price, Aggie Herring, San de Grasse, Lillian Elliott and Edna Mae Cooper are all splendid in their respective roles.

First Auctioneer

It is stated that Elihu Yale was the first man in England to conduct a sale by auction. Elihu Yale, the founder of Yale college, was buried July 22, 1721. Yale at one time was governor of Madras.

Cremation Process

In ancient times the cremated corpse was partially consumed, the bones and ashes being preserved. Today the body is reduced entirely to ashes in an oven or retort through the action of heated air and combustible gases.

MORRIS CHURCH
EVANGELISTIC
MEETINGS END

Special meetings at the Morris U. B. church closed Sunday evening with three decisions making twelve in all and the leaders of the church, with many members, aroused to a sense of their privileges in the gospel. Cases of sickness reduced the attendance but in two weeks great things were done.

Next Sunday evening, February 21 special meetings will begin at the Pontius U. B. church and the opening subject will be; "Where Shall We Place the Emphasis?"

In the two weeks time we are reaching the immediate needs and for results we have had them, for which we are thankful to God for His Word and power.

We invite the public to the coming meetings as we have had many from the city of Circleville meet with us at Morris.

Saved From Death For Science

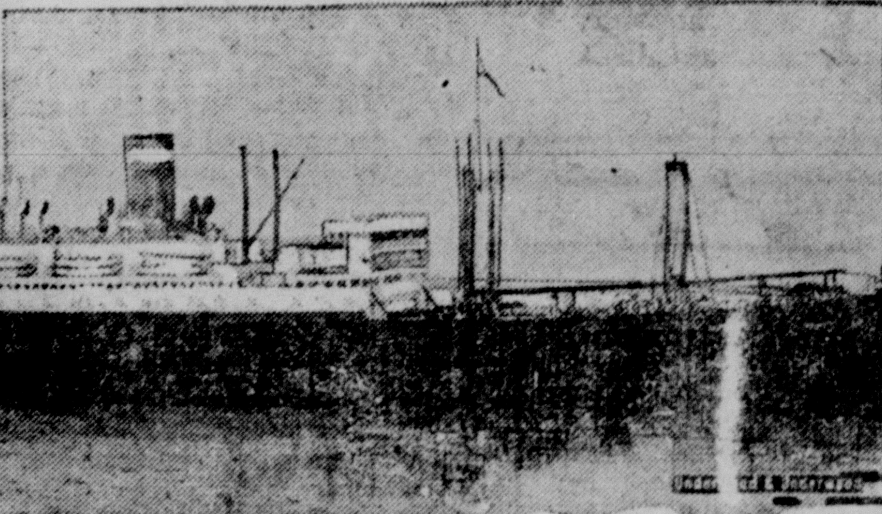

One of the most dramatic races with death came to a successful climax at the Chicago Stockyards when the World's Champion litter of pigs—16 of them—was rescued from slaughter from among 25,000 other pigs for educational purposes by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. Five minutes more and this record breaking litter, weighing more than two tons—would have been killed and lost forever to science in the interest of better live stock breeding. Now that they have been saved they will be exhibited as a demonstration herd at the American Royal Livestock show at Kansas City and at the International in Chicago, it was announced today by Samuel R. Guard, Director of the Foundation.

W. T. Rawleigh, of Freeport, Illinois, has the distinction of breaking the world's records in the "litter" contests, which have attracted attention in the livestock world. The champion litter, at the end of the 180 day period, averaged 299 1/2 pounds each, or a total of 4,789 pounds, considerably more than two tons. Another remarkable feature of the Foundation's hunt for the world champion litter revealed the fact that the same Rawleigh Farm had sent another litter to the Yards, consisting of 15 pigs and weighing 4511 1/2 pounds. "When these ton-litter contests were started by Professor James H. Wiley of Purdue University, the idea was to produce 2,000 pounds of pork in six months from a litter of ten pigs," said Director Guard of the Foundation. "That was an average of 200 pounds and pigs in 180 days. Some farmers, however, were too much, but many of them, by breeding prolific, rapidly maturing stock of pigs, succeeded in producing litters well over the two-ton mark in six months. This should convince the average farmer that the production of a ton litter is no difficult matter after all."

BASKETBALL
GAMES TAKEN
BY PICKAWAY

Williamsport Lassies are the Victors at the Armory—Students on Honor Roll.

The Pickaway Basketball teams took both games in the doubleheader play with Atlanta at Atlanta last Friday evening. The girls showed real basketball ability in the last half coming from behind to win by a score of 19 to 17.

The boys were not able to score on Atlanta until the second quarter but after the scoring machine started it was impossible to stop it, the final score being 31 to 7 in favor of Pickaway.

The cage men of Pickaway displaying poor form; ran wild against Williamsport Tuesday evening at the armory. The game was slow and rough in places.

The Pickaway lassies playing fair ball went down to defeat under the shower of baskets made by Williamsport.

VICTIMS THRASH COUSIN BULLIES AFTER 15 YEARS

Waited Until They Grew Up
So They Could Do the Job Right.

Kalamazoo, Mich.—"Just you wait till we're grown up, you big bullies, and we'll knock your blocks off," two small boys, 15 years ago, promised their two cousins who were visiting them at Joliet, Ill.

One night recently the challengers came to Kalamazoo and fulfilled their promise.

Auburn Steele, twenty-four, and his brother, Frank, twenty, were locked up in the police station here, charged with assaulting their two cousins, Frank and Guy Warden. Frank, who Auburn declares, was the bully of by-gone days, was so badly beaten he had to be attended by a doctor. Guy fared slightly better.

Blows for Greetings.

The other night the Wardens heard someone open the front door and walk in.

Frank and Guy jumped out of bed to meet the intruders.

Smack! Frank Warden was knocked to the floor by a blow in the face.

"This is your cousin Auburn come to see you," the voice announced.

Smack! Guy Warden took one on the jaw and toppled over.

"And this is your cousin Frank," said another voice in the dark.

In another instant the four cousins were milling about on the floor, striking, kicking, and biting.

Finally one of the Wardens signaled he had enough.

"Water," he cried. "I'm fainting."

Revives With Pall of Water.

There was a pall of water on a table nearby. Cousin Auburn let Cousin Frank have the full contents in the face.

Then the visitors left.

Police found the Wardens' cousins at the Michigan Central station.

"We were on our way to Grand Rapids and had to pass through Kalamazoo," said Auburn. "We decided to look the Wardens up and give them that licking we had promised them."

"We have no regrets. They always bullied us around when we were kids. It was an old grudge, but they had it coming."

He Stole to Eat, He Says, and Proves It

New York.—Walter Knowles was a hungry seaman. That was the excuse he gave to detectives of the Oak street station after he had been locked up on a charge of robbery. And when they provided him with food he demonstrated his appetite to them. He ate three portions of ham and eggs before coming up for air.

Walter who is twenty-one and says he lives at the Seamen's Institute, No. 25 South street, was discovered by Anthony Pullis in his room on the third floor of No. 69 James street. Walter had some silk handkerchiefs belonging to Pullis, and Pullis stuck his head out of the window and shouted for help.

"I haven't had a square meal for two weeks, and I sure was hungry," Walter explained. "So I thought I'd steal something and hock it to buy some food with."

Angry Squirrels Lick Bullying Hound Dog

Boston.—Timid squirrels which for years have lived in the yard of Harvard university, recently licked a 20-pound hound dog which had been making life miserable for them for some time.

This dog attacked one of the squirrels while it was gathering nuts. Immediately half a dozen other squirrels ran to the rescue. When the battle ended the dog was so badly bitten and scratched that it had to be taken to a veterinary. The squirrels fled up trees when the police approached.

Gossip Causes Suicide

Anderson, Ind.—Gossip led Miss Myrtle Manis, twenty-one, to commit suicide by drinking carbolic acid, according to a farewell note the girl left, stating that all that had been said about her was not true.

Still Worse

Dora—I think Mary is mean! I showed her my engagement ring and she said it was always too tight for her.

Gladys—Yes, that's exactly what she said to me last summer when I was wearing it.

Beyond Harm

Attendant (at show for adults only)—I'm sorry, madam, but you can't take your dog in with you.

Lady—Don't be so ridiculous. Why Tootsy's over five and has quite a big family.—Passing Show.

HOG PRICES FOR 1925 GIVE FARMERS PROFITABLE YEAR

Hog prices in 1925, according to market reports obtained by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation, have been the highest since 1920 and the number of hogs slaughtered nearly 20 per cent less than in 1924 and 1923, when production was at a record level. With prices approximately 50 per cent higher this year than last year, hog producers have had an especially profitable season. The range of prices has run from $10.00 to almost $14.50 per hundred pounds, the peaks being reached in March, July and September.

Domestic consumptive demand has been keen throughout the year in spite of higher retail prices for pork products. Exports have been the smallest in a number of years.

The ratio between prices of hogs and corn prices turned favorably for the feeder last spring and is now the best that it has been since 1922. Last spring's pig crop in the corn belt, which is now coming on the market, was estimated to be 10.6 per cent less than the pig crop of the spring of 1924. This indicates that rather high prices are likely to be maintained during most of the 1926 season, unless a very large crop of hogs is produced and pushed rapidly into the markets. Excepting the months of January and February, receipts at the eleven leading markets of the country, have gone below the 675,000 level and from June to December have been below the 550,000 mark.

CAPT. HAWK'S CONDITION

The veterans all over the United States are much interested in the condition of Capt. E. L. Hawk, of Sacramento, Calif., who is the most active and useful veteran on the Pacific Coast. He has always been warmly interested in the Grand Army of the Republic. He attends every National Encampment, and one of his specific acts was his purchase of the ground on which his regiment, the 114th Ohio, was organized.

At Grand Rapids there was universal sorrow from the report of his comrades from California that Comrade Hawk was in the hospital to undergo a serious operation, from which they felt he would not survive. In answer to our personal inquiry recently as to his condition he writes us a letter, from which the following are excerpts:

"I have many, many letters from friends asking me to let them know of my condition, but so far I have not answered one."

"I have now been home two months, after three months of hospital experience, the first time in a hospital in 62 years; my only other such experience being three weeks in Gayosa Hospital, in Memphis, immediately after the surrender of Vicksburg in July, 1863."

"I believe that I can now say that I am well again. I have tried to be a perfect patient, believing that what is worth doing is worth doing well. Now, for two weeks past I am allowed to eat at will, while previously for many weeks it was milk, toast, rice and eggs. I have not given an hour a day to business, but believe that now I am in fit condition."

"I expect to do all I can for my comrades of this Department and am assured that this successful operation which I have undergone will make me in better condition to do so."

"Mrs. Hawk has been suffering from nervous prostration for a few months past, but is improving, the one nurse taking care of us both."

"I regretted at the time that I was compelled to withdraw from the race for Commander-in-Chief, but now I am well satisfied, as had I been successful I would not have been able for months to attend to the duties. A kind Providence has been good to me, and so have my comrades. —Cincinnati Commercial Tribune."

WASHINGTON SPECIALS

Washington, Feb. 12.—(UP.)—The Republican-Democratic coalition tax bill nearing final adoption in the senate, is a "multi-millionaire subsidy," Senator Howell, Nebraska, Republican, told the senate today in the opening of the final fight of the group opposing the bill. "This bill means government favors for those with incomes over $100,000" Howell said. "The poor men will pay for it."

Here are the conditions of the settlement of the longest anthracite coal strike, which started last September 1, as announced by Secretary of Labor Davis today:

- 1—A five year wage contract, with no increase in pay over the present schedules.
- 2—A modified check-off system of collecting union dues from the pay of miners.
- 3—A provision that changes in the wage scale may be made through mutual agreement at any time.
- 4—Arbitration is eliminated as a method of settling disputes, collective bargaining being substituted.

VITRIFIED BRICK

Making Results of Highly Technical Knowledge.

While some of the knowledge of how to make vitrified paving brick is due to former clay working chemists who lived many centuries ago, present-day clay working chemists who direct the making of paving brick, select their shale, grind it, mass it with proper solvents, "fiber" and die-mould the mass under hydraulic pressure, and then vitrify the brick with graduated heat, with the same care and scientific precision employed by chemists who direct the manufacture of valuable toxins, serums and medicinal products. Some of these are graduates from the foremost technical schools of Europe and America. Some have gained their knowledge from experience, guided by long and careful study of reliable text-books, together with personal instructions by men with finished educations in this science.

All of them must be competent, because all paving brick is now tested twice—once when the brick comes out of the kiln, and again before it is laid on the street or highway. This insures the brick going in the job in perfect condition, so neither incompetent inspection or careless work by floating laborers that contractors are often forced to employ can spoil the pavement. Because of this double testing, almost uniform reports of "No wear evident" are being received from all cities where brick pavements have been laid during the past fifteen years.

MURDERER IS IDENTIFIED BY BERTILLON SYSTEM

Danville, Ill., Feb. 13.—(UP.)—Luke O'Neill spent $1,000 to have his face altered in order to avoid detection but he neglected the most certain means of identification—his finger tips. Today O'Neill is in the custody of Danville authorities who claim he has confessed the murder of Catherine Gore in New York, Sept. 13, 1925.

O'Neill was arrested for the theft of an automobile in St. Louis. His finger prints were taken as a matter of jail routine but an alert officer noted the similarity between the prints and those contained in a New York police bulletin concerning the murder of Miss Gore. Confronted with this evidence O'Neill confessed. O'Neill said he had been traveling about the middle-west as "Edgar Vance" after spending $1,000 for facial operations so that he would not be recognized.

Sour Milk Gingerbread.

Add two level teaspoonfuls of bicarbonate of soda to a cupful of sour milk and turn it into a cupful of heavy dark molasses. Sift in two and a quarter cupfuls of flour, a half teaspoonful of salt, and three level teaspoonfuls of ground ginger. Add a half cupful of melted butter, melted over hot water and strained, pour in buttered shallow pan, and bake for twenty-five minutes in a medium oven. A teaspoonful of vanilla is often added and improves the flavor.

Sour Cream Salad Dressing

Take a cupful of sour cream and add to it a tablespoonful of sugar, a half teaspoonful of salt, three tablespoonfuls of vinegar, and a half teaspoonful of powdered dried mint leaves. Mix well and add a half salt spoonful of cayenne. This recipe is excellent with a cucumber salad.

DINNERBELL RADIO FORUM HELPS FARMER PROGRESS

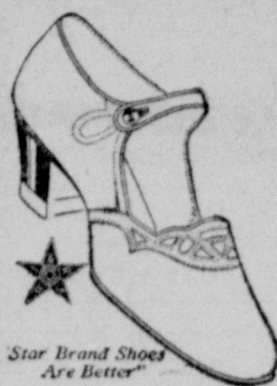

EVERY day at noon the R. F. D. dinnerbell rings out over WLS, the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation station, Chicago, calling the farmers of the country to listen in on the farm programs of the Foundation. R. F. D. represents the Radio Farmers' Democracy, composed of WLS farm radio fans, who are given the benefit of practical talks on all phases of farming by noted agricultural leaders, receive advance information on the markets and are notified of the weather conditions to enable them to protect their crops. That the farmers have benefited in dollars and cents by radio farm information is shown by the letters received by the thousands by Fred L. Petty, WLS farm editor, in which they tell of making and saving money by advance data on the markets. The "Farm Question Box," presided over by E. B. Heaton, farm adviser of the Foundation, answers by radio and mail to all the problems by which the farmers are confronted. Music and entertainment also form part of the programs. For the farmers who cannot listen in at noon, the R. F. D. programs are broadcast in the evening and once a week Junior R. F. D. roundup for the boys and girls of the community is broadcast from this station.

HONK, HONK, I'M ON THE AIR PULL OVER TO THE CURB!

"HONK, HONK, I'm on the air—pull over to the curb." This is the salutation which greets radio fans who listen in on WBBM, the Stewart-Warner station, when Nate Caldwell, the station's announcer starts the programs. Caldwell has an automobile horn which he honks to summon his radio listeners, the same as George D. Hay used his locomotive whistle for the "WLS Unlimited" when he was announcer for WLS.

"How's your speedometer?" asks the genial Nate. "All right? Then let's go," and the evening's radio entertainment of WBBM is on.

SAFELY HARVEST BUMPER LAW CROP

State Legislatures Put 13,
000 New Statutes on the Books.

New York.—One of the Founding Fathers, in the debate on the Constitution of the United States, confessed that "a voluminous code of laws is one of the inconveniences necessarily connected with the advantages of free government." Had he foreseen how voluminous it was to become he would hardly have been satisfied with so mild a word as "inconvenience," for the biennial output which reaches floodtide in the "old" years when nearly all the state legislatures are in session, passeth understanding. Just now we are observing the efforts of some forty states, including New York, to adjust themselves to more than 13,000 new statutes.

Thirteen thousand plus! The mere size of the printing bill is enough to give every taxpayer pause. The cost in clerical work, committee fees, salary of legislators, test cases in the courts, prosecution and civil litigation is beyond calculation. But, aside from the pressure upon the pocket nerve, almost all these laws regulate in some way business conduct or personal deportment and thus irritate nerves of another kind.

Much of this stupendous flood of legal verbiage is mere tinkering with existing codes. Every legislature writes its own Sartor Resartus; it repatches the patched fabric of the law, if not always dexterously, at least industriously and with gusto. Those who have attended sessions may have heard the clerk droning: "This is an act entitled an act to amend an act entitled an act to amend an act—" and so on to the ninth degree of amendment. To attend one of these sessions is a good lesson in what Elihu Root has called organized self-control. The electorate can learn best in the schoolhouse of its state capitals how its representatives function.

Fashions in Laws.

In every legislative gathering laws are offered which affect education, health, banking and railroads. These are familiar standbys. They are the teething rings on which thousands of legislators have cut their first teeth. But there is fashion in laws as in garments and bobs; and laws aimed at the motorist are becoming almost passe now that motion pictures may be censored and beauty parlors regulated. Senator Wray of the state of Washington, for instance, is the proud parent of a law authorizing schools for the teaching of the art of hairdressing and facial massage, a bill licensing persons to carry on such practice and prescribing penalties for violation. The radio, which ignores state boundaries, is a little beyond or above the state legislator; but regulation of the hours during which voices caught from the air may be turned loose upon the neighborhood are the dernier cri in legislation.

And there is always a crop of measures which may be classed as oddities. Connecticut debated with spirit a measure intended to impose a tax of $4 on each bachelor, spinster and alien. Taxation of unwedded voters is no new thing, but to jump them with aliens betrays that the author of the law regards them as strange and outlandish. The majority, however, overrode this construction of single blessedness. Iowa, in its zeal for prohibition, adopted a measure intended to prevent the sale of a kind of canned heat, for fear that the alcohol in the device would be diverted to unholy purposes.

Arizona, which is a quiet state, demanded that railroads equip their locomotives with automatic bell-ringers. Among a great many states in which taxes of various sorts were proposed on cigarettes, Tennessee adopted a sales tax of 10 per cent. Illinois offered a reward of $1,000 to any man, woman or child capturing or killing a beef robber; and Kansas taxed the use—not the sale—of gasoline for any purpose except a farm tractor.

Missouri provided that butcher shops selling both kosher and non-kosher meats should so stipulate in their window signs and advertising; and Ohio passed a law requiring that every public school teacher must read aloud daily ten verses from the Bible, without comment. This measure was vetoed by the governor.

Concern about education is invariably acute among our legislators. The ten Biblical verses in Ohio were not alone; in another state a bill was offered providing for the memorizing of the Ten Commandments. There was another bill requiring that study of the Constitution of the United States and of the state should be a prerequisite of graduation, not only from public but private schools.

Laws to Conserve Patriotism.

The battle over the Americanization of history is still waging merrily here and there. In one bill, for instance, it was provided that any school teacher speaking slightly of the Republic, its founders or the Constitution should be dismissed; and, further, that the textbooks on history and civil government should stress adequately "the services rendered by the men who achieved our national Independence . . . and preserved the Union."

But there is little of the unusual about such measures. The crop is fairly uniform and varies only in that it tends to get larger and larger as time goes on. The chief ingenuity is exhibited in devising new methods of taxation. The income tax is becoming more and more popular, and there are many states which tax the sale of gasoline, chewing gum and smoking tobacco. Some now have a state automobile fund, to which every owner of a motor vehicle must contribute, wherefrom persons injured in accidents are to receive damages.

It must be remembered that the 13,000 measures mentioned were actually enacted. More than twice as many went into the legislative hopper from the hands of earnest legislators. The percentage of enactments was, indeed, unprecedented. There are two ways to judge a state legislature; first, by the number of bills introduced; second, by the number which survive committee pitfalls and the gauntlet of debate. New York, for instance, was the Abou Ben Adhem of the states in the number of measures offered, leading with 3,186; but only 686 of them became law, whereas in North Carolina, of only 1,773 offered 1,173 were enacted.

The actual number of bills passed in 38 of these states was 13,013. Texas, perhaps preoccupied with the Fergusons, did not make any return to the National Industrial council, which reported the legislative crop; and Governor Hartley of Washington resorted to the unusual expedient of a split session, in order to give the legislators time to think over what they had done at the first gathering. During the first session the Washington legislators adopted but 34 of 128 bills offered.

The National Industrial council was organized in 1907 by the National Association of Manufacturers to oppose the enactment of laws likely to affect business unfavorably. Commenting on the new crop of statutes, M. J. Hickey, assistant secretary of the council, said that "the state legislatures were constantly finding new ways of getting revenue, thus piling up the costs of government and imposing constantly heavier taxes."

Several states adopted the executive budget during the year, and others undertook a reorganization of the executive departments.—New York Times.

Cite Man Who Lived to 152 in Long-Life Drive

London.—The memory of Thomas Parr, who set England's standard of longevity by living to be 152 years old, is being invoked in a campaign by the Long Life society in favor of simple living. The object lesson, however, is found as much in the cause of his death as in the matter of his living.

"Old Parr" lived under ten English monarchs, from 1483 to 1635, and the authenticity of the record is attested by a slab in Westminster abbey, where England's great are remembered.

Until nearly the end of his life he lived on the simplest fare, whole-grain bread, milk, cheese and fruit, and at 120 he was hale enough to marry a second time. But when he reached 152 his fame reached the ears of King Charles I, who invited him to London and feasted him so that he died.

His slab in Westminster is cited by the Long Life society "as a warning to those who suddenly and drastically alter the habits of a lifetime."

Polar Flyers to Study Bird Flight Mystery

New York.—Solution of an Arctic riddle that has fascinated explorers since first they began penetrating the polar regions will be sought by Capt. George H. Wilkins and his companions on their proposed 1,900-mile non-stop flight next spring over the top of the world.

The riddle, briefly, has been: "Where do the birds go when they keep on going north?"

Belief that land must exist somewhere beyond the farthest point reached by man exists, and Captain Wilkins will fly next year in an attempt to go from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Spitzbergen. If land is discovered it will be claimed in the name of the United States.

The Detroit Aviation society, of which Henry Ford's chief engineer is president, is backing the expedition with the American Geographical society. Government aid, and the use of Lieut. John A. Macready and James H. Doolittle, crack army aviators, has been asked.

Thieves Make Paste Gems Florida Vogue

West Palm Beach, Fla. — Palm Beach, queen of the winter social whirl, has exalted the dime-store diamond. Paste pearls and sparkling plate-glass diamonds will glitter at social functions this winter.

Synthetic gems will be the rage in Palm Beach this season. And all because sneak thieves have been reported active in the winter resort almost as soon as the season opened. It became known that the winter home of Mr. and Mrs. Horace H. Work, Madison, N. J., had been entered by thieves. A watch, some jewelry and some clothing belonging to the second butler, were taken.

A dozen of the colony's wealthiest and most prominent social leaders have placed their gems in banks for safekeeping. It was reported. Fewer real jewels are to glister in Palm Beach this season than in any previous winter.

Paint Saves Historic Mansion

THE fine old mansion at Mt. Vernon, which was the home of George Washington from 1761 to 1799, and which is visited by more than 125,000 persons a year, from all parts of the world, was in splendid state of preservation to paint protection administered at regular intervals. Since it was purchased from a descendant of Washington, in 1860, by the Mt. Vernon Ladies' Association of the Union, the historic old house has been thoroughly re-painted at regular periods, thus saving it from the wear and tear of time and the elements.

Lawrence Washington, a half-brother of George, built the middle portion of the present edifice in 1743. Coming to George Washington by inheritance in 1761, he added the library portion and overlaid the entire house with a new covering of thick boards, which he had painted white and paneled to resemble cut and dressed stone. This effect of stone is still maintained by blowing white sand with machinery for the purpose, on the freshly painted surface. There is a standing order for the re-painting of Mt. Vernon at definite intervals. In its restored and carefully preserved state, it is a national monument of which the country is and may well be proud.

Cutting Glass Under Water

Submerging glass under water does not necessarily mean that it will cut easier, but it is much less likely to crack than when cut in air. The cutting sets up vibrations in the glass which have a tendency to crack it. These vibrations are greatly reduced if the glass is placed under water during the cutting process.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE PROBE SOUGHT

THE SECRET ORGANIZATION HAS KEY TO U. S. TREASURY

Insidious Influence At Work House Resolution Charges — Attack Made For Political Effect In April Primaries, Says League Spokesman—With Both Branches of Congress In the Leagues Hands the Resolution Will Never See Daylight—

Charging the Anti-Saloon League with exercising an "insidious influence" over the treasury department in the appointment of prohibition enforcement officers, Representative Britten, Republican, Illinois, Saturday introduced a resolution to investigate the activities of that organization.

The inquiry was requested, the resolution said, because high officials of the league or its subsidiaries have been sent to prison for collecting money under false pretenses, and also because it has been shown that two high officials of one state were on the league's payroll while serving in their respective offices.

"Altho the resolution mentions no names," Britten said in a statement, "it refers indirectly to William H. Anderson, head of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, who has just completed a term in the penitentiary. It also refers indirectly to Justice Richard Hopkins of the state supreme court and Attorney General Charles B. Griffith, both of Kansas, who were credited with being on the payroll of the league after an investigation of the league's affairs in Topeka, Kansas."

The resolution would provide for appointment of a special congressional committee to conduct the inquiry and would authorize an appropriation of $50,000 to defray expenses.

"This expenditure is trivial," Britten said, "when compared with the $18,000,000 it will cost the taxpayers this year to enforce the silly Volstead law. The investigation would be of lasting benefit. It would settle the question whether the league was really operating within the law. If it is, it should have no fear of a thorough inquiry by an unprejudiced committee of both house and senate."

One of the declarations in the resolution reads:

"The welfare of the state and nation are jeopardized when public officials elected by the state to enforce all laws are receiving two salaries, one from the state and the other from an overpowering secret organization."

Others in part, said:

The league and its subsidiaries have raised large sums of money, the expenditure of which has not been made public.

The name adopted by the league is fraudulent and misleading. Its intention and purpose is complete prohibition and not alone to abolish the saloon.

Use of money by the league to influence public opinion in ways unsuspected by the American people.

Violation by the league and its subsidiaries of the national campaign contribution law and of state corrupt practices laws.

That the league paid campaign expenses of former Representative Andrew J. Volstead while he was chairman of the house judiciary committee which reported the dry law bearing his name.

Congressman Britten's attack on the Anti-Saloon League at Westerville, is being made for political effect in his home district, O. G. Christgan, educational secretary of the Anti-Saloon League, declared in a statement issued Saturday night.

"The Illinois primaries," Christgan said "came in April. A public attack on the Anti-Saloon League is a cheap and easy way for a candidate to pose in the limelight as very brave and very wet. Such attacks take the place of free beer in wet camp strategy to line up the fellows who always have been willing to trade a vote for a drink."

The Anti-Saloon League of Detroit, "has nothing to fear from investigations," declared Bishop Thomas Nicholson of the Methodist Episcopal church, president of the league, when informed Saturday of Representative Britten's resolution.

"The league has been able for 30 years to take care of its reputation and retain the confidence of the public," said Nicholson. "It has nothing to fear from investigations."

ARE YOU ELIGIBLE?

Judge Gary, in a recent speech, said a man to be successful in business must be absolutely clean and healthy mentally, morally and physically, his habits should be above reproach, he should know himself, study himself and look into his own heart and mind and conscience. He should be diligent, never intentionally negligent, keep his appointments punctually and fulfill his promises; up to date in everything pertaining to his occupation, fully informed, reasonable, fair, patient and have a good disposition toward every other person; he should make friends and avoid making enemies, he should not live for himself alone. He should acknowledge and practice the Golden Rule. He should be a loyal, patriotic citizen devoted to country, respectful to public officials and faithful in the observance of all laws so long as they exist, not talk too much, weigh every word he says, be patient and wise and absolutely honest.—Scottish Rite Progress.

Cleveland — As the second week's investigation of alleged jury tampering in the trial and conviction of Josiah Kirby of the Cleveland Discount company, got underway today, the following developments had been recorded: Four indictments had been voted, one of which was secret.

Among those indicted were two attorneys and a former politician.

Columbus — One minor was killed and 24 injured, ten seriously, when an explosion wrecked the main entrance of the Cleveland & Western company's new mine at Powhattan, Belmont county this morning according to information received by the state bureau of miners here.

Six hundred workmen entered the mine for the day shift at 7 a. m., the bureau was advised. All of them with the exception of those injured, escaped unhurt, reports to the bureau declared.

STOCKHOLDERS PLEASED WITH NEW GAS WELL

R. L. Brehmer, Homer Fullen, S. M. Cryder Sr., Frank Hamilton, W. L. Mack, Harold Hott, Charles H. Smith and Albert Crist went down to South Bloomfield Sunday morning to witness the shooting of a gas well.

The well is located on land leased by the South Bloomfield Gas and Oil company, composed of South Bloomfield and Circleville stockholders who have financed the expense of digging a hole and the casing was tapped Sunday. The well has a good flow, the rock pressure showed three-quarters of a million feet of gas which if the flow keeps up will be worth $75 a day to the producers. The company has 375 acres of land leased in the vicinity. The stockholders are much elated. In the neighborhood are wells that have been flowing continuously for ten years.

DAYTON FIRE LOSS REACHES THE MILLION

Flames Broke Out in Home Store and Spread Rapidly — Several Firm Suffered.

Dayton, O., Feb. 15, (UP).— Fire originating in the Home store at midnight entailing a loss estimated at $1,000,000 was under control shortly after daylight today.

The lower floor of the Home store, was in flames when discovered by a policeman and spread rapidly to each of the four floors above attacked the 14 story American building at the corner of Third and Main streets and ate its way around this building into the Home store annex on Main street adjoining the city hall.

For a time it seemed that both the American building and the City hall would go with the three 4-story building occupied by the Home store. However, the fire was brought under control and some of the fire fighting apparatus was dismissed.

Ten or twelve business firms sustained a direct fire loss and others were damaged by smoke and water.

Sections of the rear wall of the Home store caved in on the North Market street side. At 4:30 a. m. the second floor also caved in. The upper floors crashed down previously.

Altho the fire was practically extinguished at dawn a large force of fire fighters remained at the scene pouring water on the burning embers.

During the height of the flames fifteen streams of water were poured into them from the upper floors of the American building from the roof of the Adler and Childs store, which is owned by the Home store company and is separated from that store by a fire wall and from the windows and roof of the City building.

ATTENDANCE FOR ALL FARM WEEKS IS 54,661.

More than 50,000 Ohio farmers have attended the annual Farmers' week, sponsored each winter by the Ohio State university. Attendance at the fourteenth annual Farmers' week, which ended last Friday, brought the total to 54,661, according to records in the office of Dean Alfred Vivian of the college of agriculture.

Attendance at the 1926 Farmers' week was the fifth best in the 14 years, despite unfavorable weather. Registration last week was 5005, as against an initial attendance at the first Farmers' week in 1913 of 140, and an average for the 14 years of 3904.

STAND OF OUR COMMITTEEMAN IS COMMENDED

Organization Indorses Action of Curtis Randolph and Candidates.

At a meeting of the county Republican central committee held Saturday afternoon, the action of Curtis Randolph, of New Lexington, member of the state central committee, in opposing the pre-primary convention plan of the state committee last week was approved.

It seems that at this meeting held in Columbus just 13 of the 22 members were present and of this 13 there were seven in favor of the pre-primary convention, while six were against it. After the session it was stated that the proposal was indorsed by all the members present and this statement was broadcasted all over the state.

It developed later that in the meeting six of the 13 were opposed to the pre-primary convention and that the member from this district was one of those in opposition, at least until such time as it could be held under legal sanction. The Pickaway county committee unanimously commended Mr. Randolph for his stand in the matter.

The county committee also indorsed Thad H. Brown for the Republican nomination for governor, Joseph E. Cross for secretary of state and John M. Vorys and C. C. Chappellear for renominations as state senators.

BRACING TREES NOW PREVENTS LOSS LATER

Apple and other trees may be examined during the winter and, where limbs are weakened by heavy fruiting, weak crotches, or winter injury, effectively braced to prevent splitting. Several methods of bracing depending upon the size of the limbs to be supported are suggested by F. S. Howlett, assistant in horticulture at Ohio Experiment Station.

Where two opposite limbs of a crotch are to be fastened together, the most desirable way, he says, is to bore a hole through each of the limbs several feet from the crotch depending upon the size and angle of the limbs. Ring bolts or bolts with a hook on the end are inserted into the holes and anchored with a washer and nut on the outside of the limb. The limbs are then supported by several strands of heavy galvanized wire or cable put through the rings and twisted together.

With young trees it is best to fasten the wire with large screw eyes, or staples may be used if the limbs are not too large.

Where several limbs of about equal size are to be supported, the wires or cables from all may be fastened to a central ring which will take the strain in all directions.

Cows Lungs Cover City Lot

IF THE spongy sacks which form the lung of a cow were spread out flat they would cover a city lot 50 by 170 feet, according to an estimate made by experts of the Larrowe Institute of Animal Economics. To keep this mass of flesh functioning normally, over 3,000 cubic feet of fresh air are required each hour, which, served to cows in buckets as is water and grain, would mean 320 three-gallon pails every hour for each cow.

A cow needs air (oxygen) to purify her blood, to digest and assimilate feed and turn it into heat, body repairing material and milk. Add to the well-ventilated barn a plentiful supply of fresh water, good roughage and a correctly mixed dairy ration, and you have all the essentials for abundant milk making. It is this lack of fresh air on many farms during the long winter months that is believed by practical farmers to be the underlying cause for much of the sickness among the animals.

Prosperous Dairy Year Shown by Butter Prices

THE 1925 butter market reveals a prosperous condition in the dairy industry, according to the year-end agricultural review of the Larrowe Institute of Animal Economics. Although butter production during the first nine months of the past year seems to have lagged behind the corresponding period in the year previous, it was larger during the last quarter of 1925 than in the corresponding period of 1924. Beginning with October, receipts were the largest on record at this season of the year. For the year as a whole they were about 3 per cent less than in 1924.

Prices averaged higher than in 1924. The average wholesale price of 92 score creamery butter on the New York market in 1925 was approximately 45 cents a pound compared with 43 cents the year previous. Highest 1925 prices were received in October and November when weekly averages reached 52 and 51.5 cents, respectively.

Cow Works Three Months to Give Year's Milk for One Person

NINETY days of hard labor on the part of the average dairy cow will keep one person in milk for a year, according to the Larrowe Institute of Animal Economics. At least, it takes three months for her to turn out the 1,004 pounds of milk necessary to provide the fluid and canned milk, cheese, butter and ice cream consumed per capita per year.

While this fact may be merely interesting to the person consuming the milk, it is of vital importance to the dairyman who depends upon this milk for a living. For while the 4,368 pounds of milk produced by the average cow in a year will meet the requirements of a family of four persons, by the time one has figured up the cost of the feed that has gone into the production, there really isn't very much left. The only way to permanently increase the income per cow is in greater milk production per unit, government figures showing that when a cow's milk yield is doubled the profit is tripled, and when the yield is tripled the profit is increased almost five-fold. Experiments have proven that it is entirely possible by better feeding and management to increase the milk yield of the average cow to a point where three cows could supply four families with milk. To do this, however, the hocus-pocus feeding so commonly practiced on many dairy farms will have to give way to more scientific methods. Comfortable quarters for the cows, an abundance of fresh water at all times, a plentiful supply of good hay and a properly balanced green ration are some of the things that go far toward securing greater profit per cow.

WHAT IS TO BE DONE?

"A very difficult question," the President calls the traffic casualties of the time. The figures that he cites—24,000 persons killed in a year upon the streets and highways of the country, and probably more than 500,000 injured. This means that over a period of the same length as our participation in the world war Americans are losing three-fourths as many lives on streets and roads as they lost to German bullets, and running up in addition a non-fatal casualty list thrice as great as they did abroad.

"The president has asked all the governors to appoint delegates to a national safety convention to assemble in March. While we know of no formula to meet the situation he has outlined the conference may write history by focusing public attention on the national aspects of a problem made up of a multitude of incidents at street corners and cross roads. Many communities are at work seeking and applying remedies.

The figures set forth in this article certainly ought to be a very convincing argument for

Early Europeans
The ancient name of France and Belgium was Gallia, and the Romans called the people generally Galli, for which the English equivalents are Gaul and Gauls. The Gauls were a Celtic people, who came originally from central Asia and at a very early time invaded Europe, settling finally in what are now France and Belgium. Their degraded paganism was known as Druidism.

Devices That Reduce Dangers of Aviation
Plans have been submitted to the air ministry by Capt. Frank T. Courtney, well known racing and test pilot, of a scheme to overcome the difficulties of flying in fog and to make regular services possible by night and day in practically any weather.
Captain Courtney points out that at certain times of the year aircraft transport is a farce, and much of its value is also lost because it is not possible to fly at night. The scheme now being put up, which has been evolved as a result of two years' work, is based on practical experience and is a combination of wireless and an adaptation of those modern instruments with which present-day planes are equipped.
Instead of flying by eye—which means that, when visibility is bad, a landing is necessary—pilots would fly entirely by instruments, and at Croydon there would be an aerial signal-box, from which instructions would be flashed across space by wireless. Pilots would be able to follow these instructions by means of their adapted instruments.—London Tit-Bits.

Tiger Holds Its Own as Enemy of Mankind
The Indian tiger is the most successful member of the jungle in the contest with man, for, unlike its brethren it inflicts nearly as many casualties as it suffers. This is brought out by a return of the government of India, showing the mortality from wild animals and venomous snakes, writes a Calcutta correspondent of the London Post. Last year the total number of persons killed by wild animals in British India amounted to 2,587, as against 3,605 in the previous year. Tigers were responsible for 1,174 deaths, leopards for 406, wolves for 419, bears for 82, elephants for 41, and hyenas for 19. Deaths from snake bite fell from 19,990 to 19,867.
During the year 21,032 wild animals were reported to have been destroyed, of which 1,706 were tigers, 5,202 leopards, 2,799 bears and 1,743 wolves. A sum of 171,170 rupees was paid in rewards, against 165,367, rupees in the previous year.

Wonderful Woman
"Women succeed their husbands nowadays as governors, as senators, as mayors, and as traveling salesmen," said President Loeb of the Traveling Salesmen's National council at a dinner in New York.
"It reminds me of a story about a famous basso," he went on. "The basso had just died, and a tourist, visiting his native village in Tuscany, said to a Tuscan:
"So your great basso is dead. What a loss! Too bad, too bad!"
"Yeh," said the Tuscan, "it is too bad, but I suppose his wife'll carry on the business all right."

Money in Oil Wells
Of the 21,713 oil wells completed in the United States in 1924, it is said 2,250 turned out to be gas wells, while 5,152 went dry and did not produce oil in paying quantities. The cost of drilling the smallest of these wells was around $30,000 and in some instances the drilling ran as much as $175,000. A fair estimate of the money put into drilling oil wells in the United States places the total at $12,000,000,000, and the value of all oil recovered since the first well was sunk in 1859 has been placed at about $8,000,000,000.

Bear's Speed Stunt Fatal
Two large black bears put on a speed stunt with a fast train for pacer near Rinfret Junction, province of Quebec. Loping along the track in front of the train, the bears zig-zagged back and forth for a long distance. The train slowed down to 28 miles an hour to give the bears a sporting chance, but the erratic running of one of them resulted in his death before the engineer could stop.

Hardly Qualified Jurors
With only nine jurors, the court instructed the bailiff, at Toledo, Ohio, to pick up three more. The latter saw three men sitting in the rear of the courthouse. "Get into the jury box," he commanded. Spectators began to grin. So did the three men. They had just pleaded guilty to the charge of burglary. The court noticed the mistake in time and three other talesmen were selected before the trial began.

GRACE EPISCOPAL CHURCH OF POMEROY, OHIO,
Is Owned By Descendants of Valentine B. Horton, Who Served Ohio In Congress In 1850.

What is possibly the only church edifice in Ohio that is privately owned, is Grace Episcopal Church in Pomeroy, O., built at the expense of an early settler of that municipality, Valentine B. Horton, in 1833.
The edifice is of English Gothic design in architecture, the body of the Church built of cut stone, being exactly like St. Philip's Episcopal Church, Circleville. When finished the church was given to his bride, Clara Pomeroy, by Mr. Horton.
Art glass memorial windows which came from England, were recently placed in the old church by the grandsons of deceased, who are keeping the building in repair.
Mr. Horton was first elected to congress in 1860. He was a member of the Ohio Constitutional convention in 1850 and the Peace Congress held in Washington in 1861.
An intimate personal friend of Mr. Horton says of him that he was a man of rare personal presence, tall, well-formed, erect and over all a noble head, a man of mark in any company. His face was fine, strong, mobile, expressive, his manner easy, self-possessed, deliberate, but not slow. Dignified in conversation, entertaining, courteous and gracious, and yet immovably firm in principle. In intellect, clear and comprehensive, grasping a multitude of details, but keeping to the essential point of surpassing ability in economic questions and practical enterprise.
And yet that fine pile of stone on the Ohio river, representing the love for his wife, remained the apple of his eye.

TELEPHONE NATION
The telephone is rapidly usurping the position formerly held by the telegraph in control of trains and transmission of railroad business.
Train orders are now being transmitted by telephone on more than 54 per cent of the railroads of the country.
Not only are telephones being used for transmission of train orders, but telephone stations are being installed on many roads at each signal bridge and siding, and are connected with adjacent interlocking or block stations, so that almost constant communication can be had by train crews, with headquarters.
Many railroads have also provided means by which observation cars on certain trains are connected with the city telephone service, so that a passenger up to the time the train leaves the station, may communicate with any point in the city.—The Manufacturer.

EVERGLADES AFIRE!

It was reported the other day that the heavy rains of last week had extinguished fires which were burning in the Everglades. These fires were not in the grass and trees of the Glades, but in the soil itself.

This bit of news is called to the attention of the editorial writer of the Ohio State Journal and others, who contend that the Everglades are below sea level and are swamps. Most swamps do not burn. It is because these particular lands will burn that they are becoming so valuable from an agricultural standpoint.

The soil in the Everglades is largely muck, of the richest type. It has been in process of creation for thousands of years, and it will furnish plant food for thousands of years to come. It is so largely composed of vegetable matter that it can be burned, just as peat is, but the same land that will burn will also produce potatoes and cane and corn and all kinds of truck, and forage grass that cannot be surpassed anywhere else on earth.

There is in these same Everglades a vast agricultural empire, the real development of which is just beginning, and which will help feed the nations of the world. It cannot be drowned out, and it will not be burned up. It is to be hoped that the next time the Ohio editor receives a Florida paper which is a little damp in one corner, he will understand that it is not because the Everglades are below sea level, but because a careless mail carrier allowed a bit of Ohio snow to fall on the paper while he was carrying it to the Ohio State Journal office. —Miami Herald.

AN OLD-FASHIONED EDUCATOR

President Montgomery of Center College at Danville, Kentucky, declares he will not resign, if all the students pick up their traps and leave the school. Early in December groups of students had requested his resignation, it being understood at the time that the president was not as much obsessed with the athletic complex as the student body believed he should be.

President Montgomery seems to be an old-fashioned sort of an educator who still thinks the primary purpose of a college is to offer academic training and that the president and faculty of a school should have something to say about the government of the institution. He hasn't caught on to the up-to-date idea that a college's first duty is to produce a football team, and that the faculty should stand in the background and permit the students to run the school as they see fit.

It is very apparent that Dr. Montgomery is a back number in these respects. Likewise, he seems to have a goodly share of the spunk that characterized school executives in older days. His declaration that "Prexy" intends to be in the saddle if everybody goes home in reminiscent of the "professor" of a former age who, when some smart alec got fresh, mopped the floor of the school house with carcass of the challenger of his authority. There are a lot of college presidents in this country who wish they had the spine to defy the athletic craze, as the president of Center College has done. —Houston Post-Dispatch.

Slants on Life

Paring His Expense Account

THE Risedales were at breakfast. Risedale had not been as cordial as usual.

"Anything the matter, dear?" asked Mrs. Risedale.

"Lots of things, always, Lavinia." "Well, what is the particular thing this morning? You look as though you were harboring an embryonic grinch. Better scotch it before it develops."

"I will. When I made you an allowance I asked you just how large it should be."

"Your memory is faulty, Benjamin. You asked me how small it should be. Not in those words, of course. What you really asked was that I should tell you the least I could get along with for personal expenses—how much a month. You said you had to have a lot of money at work in business. Am I right?"

"Your mind, Lavinia, is exact as to some details though a bit lax as to others. You haven't a shrewd business sense. I suppose you remember what you replied. 'My dear,' you said—and I remember you looked charming as you said it—I think I can get along nicely on a thousand a month."

"I remember. And you were generous enough to respond: 'My dear, I'll make it $1,200 a month.' You've always been a liberal darling." She went over and kissed him, and then went back to her coffee.

"Thank you. But why should bills like this be sent to me?" He handed her a paper. "That calls for $150 for three hats. Aren't hats related to your personal expenses?" She looked at the bill. "But I was short, Benjamin. I had spent all my money. And the one thing you warned me about was my bank account. 'Never, in any case, overdraw,' you told me."

"I'm glad you remembered that. But you'll have to pay this bill out of your next month's allowance."

"Oh!" She thought a moment. "And I wanted to go shopping today!"

"I Saw a Policeman Standing by My Car."

"But tomorrow is the first of the month. Can't you postpone your excursion?"

She thought another moment. "It's a bargain sale. And tomorrow I might not find a bargain."

"Well, I'll lend you $100 until tomorrow." He wrote a check and passed it over. "But you must pay me from your allowance."

"What a dear you are! But I saved you $25 yesterday, so I'll pay you back $75."

"Saved me $25? How?" "It was the funniest thing! But it proved that I have an alert business sense, though you say I lack it."

"I'm anxious to be convinced as to that."

"You know when you bought my limousine you said it was a present, and you agreed to keep it up if I would learn to drive it."

"Yes."

"Well, I went shopping yesterday."

"Another bargain sale?"

"No. Just shopping. Though I did buy a new costume. That's why I'm short."

"But how did you save me $25?"

"It was the strangest thing! I left my car in front of Blightley's, where I bought my costume. I was in the shop quite a while. When I came out, just as I was in the doorway, I saw a policeman standing by my car. I stopped, a little frightened. Thought something was wrong. I waited for him to go away."

"Just happened to be standing there, I suppose."

"I thought so, but he didn't go. Then I began to think. All at once the truth dawned on me."

"Well?"

"I remembered reading there is a fine of $25 for leaving a car within a certain distance of a fire plug."

"And you had violated the ordinance, of course."

"Well, there was a fire plug right by my car!"

"You got in bad, Lavinia. Paid the policeman, I suppose! That would be the woman's way."

"Wait. I took a street car home, leaving the policeman on guard. When I got home I called up police headquarters and told them my car had been stolen, giving them the number, etc."

"What a nerve, Lavinia!"

"Just good business, Benjamin. I waited a while, and they phoned that my car had been found standing in front of Blightley's and in an hour a policeman drove up with it."

"And that's—"

"Yes. That's the way I saved you $25, dear!"

AMUSEMENTS

Three things apparently go toward making a good motion picture. The story, the direction and the cast.

"Sally, Irene and Mary" at the Met theater has all three. First the story which was suggested by the stage play which Ed. Dowling wrote and which was adapted to the screen by Hope Loring and Louis Leighton. It has a theatrical background that is full of interest for all and tells parallel stories of three girls who are in the musical show, "The Dainties."

There is Sally, who comes as near being a heavy as anyone in the picture. Yet she has many a redeeming feature as all heavies in life have.

Three Different Types.

There is Irene, the sentimental one. She is weak and is buoyed on by the influence of others.

And there is Mary who is a great little kid.

The three girls are friends at the theater. Away from there they lead widely different but contented lives.

But when their lives are interwoven it proves to be a disadvantage if anything. Sally stages a party at her luxurious apartment maintained for her by a wealthy admirer, where Mary and Irene get their first taste of luxury and unhappiness.

Irene's unlucky infatuation for an insincere worlding ends tragically in her death while recklessly eloping with another after he has thrown her over, and Mary narrowly averts a marriage to Sally's good natured but worthless millionaire friend.

The tense drama is relieved by some rare comedy scenes and the sweet, satisfying romance of Mary and her lower East Side sweetheart.

The direction, which was done by Edmund Goulding, is letter perfect. It runs smoothly from beginning to end and marks Goulding as one of the truly great directors of the screen. Mr. Goulding, himself, wrote the screen version of this Edward Dowling stage success.

An Excellent Cast.

The cast is ideal. Constance Bennett as Sally, Joan Crawford as Irene and Sally O'Neil as Mary, are perfectly suited to their respective roles. It would be impossible to select any one of them as the best for the parts they play are widely constricted.

William Haines, Henry Kolker, Douglas Gilmore, Kate Price, Aggie Herring, San de Grasse, Lillian Elliott, and Edna Mae Cooper are all splendid in their respective roles.

First Auctioneer

It is stated that Ellhu Yale was the first man in England to conduct a sale by auction. Ellhu Yale, the founder of Yale college, was buried July 22, 1721. Yale at one time was governor of Madras.

Cremation Process

In ancient times the cremated corpse was partially consumed, the bones and ashes being preserved. Today the body is reduced entirely to ashes in an oven or retort through the action of heated air and combustible gases.

EVANGELISTIC
MEETINGS END

Special meetings at the Morris U. B. church closed Sunday evening with three decisions making twelve in all and the leaders of the church, with many members, aroused to a sense of their privileges in the gospel. Cases of sickness reduced the attendance but in two weeks great things were done.
Next Sunday evening, February 21 special meetings will begin at the Pontius U. B. church and the opening subject will be; "Where Shall We Place the Emphasis?"
In the two weeks time we are reaching the immediate needs and for results we have had them, for which we are thankful to God for His Word and power.
We invite the public to the coming meetings as we have had many from the city of Circleville meet with us at Morris.

Saved From Death For Science
One of the most dramatic races with death came to a successful climax at the Chicago Stockyards when the World's Champion litter of pigs—16 of them—was rescued from slaughter from among 25,000 other pigs for educational purposes by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. Five minutes more and this record breaking litter, weighing more than two tons—would have been killed and lost forever to science in the interest of better live stock breeding. Now that they have been saved they will be exhibited as a demonstration herd at the American Poral Livestock show at Kansas City and at the International in Chicago, it was announced today by Samuel R. Guard, Director of the Foundation.
W. T. Rawleigh, of Freeport, Illinois, has the distinction of breaking the world's records in the "litter" contests, which have attracted attention in the livestock world. The champion litter, at the end of the 180 day period, averaged 299 1/2 pounds each, or a total of 4,780 pounds, considerably more than two tons.
Another remarkable feature of the Foundation's hunt for the world champion litter revealed the fact that the same Rawleigh Farm had sent another litter to the Yards, consisting of 15 pigs and weighing 4511 1/2 pounds.
"When these ton-litter contests were started by Professor James R. Wiley of Purdue University, the idea was to produce 2,000 pounds of pork in six months from a litter of ten pigs," said Director Guard of the Foundation. "That was an average of 200 pounds per pig in 180 days. Some farmers thought it was too much, but many of them, by being prolific, rapidly maturing stock of pigs, succeeded in producing litters well over the two-ton mark in six months, making it a difficult matter after the average of 200 pounds per pig."

BASKETBALL
GAMES TAKEN
BY PICKAWAY

Williamsport Lassies are the Victors at the Armory---
Students on Honor Roll.

The Pickaway Basketball teams took both games in the doubleheader play with Atlanta at Atlanta last Friday evening. The girls showed real basketball ability in the last half coming from behind to win by a score of 19 to 17.
The boys were not able to score on Atlanta until the second quarter but after the scoring machine started it was impossible to stop it, the final score being 31 to 7 in favor of Pickaway.

Pickaway Scalps Another.
The cage men of Pickaway displaying poor form; ran wild against Williamsport Tuesday evening at the armory. The game was slow and rough in places.
The Pickaway lassies playing fair ball went down to defeat under the shower of baskets made by Williamsport.

VICTIMS THRASH COUSIN BULLIES AFTER 15 YEARS

Waited Until They Grew Up So They Could Do the Job Right.

Kalamazoo, Mich.—"Just you wait till we're grown up, you big bullies, and we'll knock your blocks off," two small boys, 15 years ago, promised their two cousins who were visiting them at Joliet, Ill.

One night recently the challengers came to Kalamazoo and fulfilled their promise.

Auburn Steele, twenty-four, and his brother, Frank, twenty, were locked up in the police station here, charged with assaulting their two cousins, Frank and Guy Warden. Frank, who Auburn declares, was the bully of bygone days, was so badly beaten he had to be attended by a doctor. Guy fared slightly better.

Blows for Greetings.

The other night the Wardens heard someone open the front door and walk in.

Frank and Guy jumped out of bed to meet the intruders.

Smack! Frank Warden was knocked to the floor by a blow in the face.

"This is your cousin Auburn come to see you," the voice announced.

Smack! Guy Warden took one on the jaw and toppled over.

"And this is your cousin Frank," said another voice in the dark.

In another instant the four cousins were milling about on the floor, striking, kicking, and biting.

Finally one of the Wardens signaled he had enough.

"Water," he cried. "I'm fainting."

Revives With Pail of Water.

There was a pail of water on a table nearby. Cousin Auburn let Cousin Frank have the full contents in the face.

Then the visitors left.

Police found the Wardens' cousins at the Michigan Central station.

"We were on our way to Grand Rapids and had to pass through Kalamazoo," said Auburn. "We decided to look the Wardens up and give them that licking we had promised them."

"We have no regrets. They always bullied us around when we were kids. It was an old grudge, but they had it coming."

He Stole to Eat, HeSays, and Proves It

New York.—Walter Knowles was a hungry seaman. That was the excuse he gave to detectives of the Oak street station after he had been locked up on a charge of robbery. And when they provided him with food he demonstrated his appetite to them. He ate three portions of ham and eggs before coming up for air.

Walter who is twenty-one and says he lives at the Seamen's Institute, No. 25 South street, was discovered by Anthony Pulis in his room on the third floor of No. 69 James street. Walter had some silk handkerchiefs belonging to Pulis, and Pulis stuck his head out of the window and shouted for help.

"I haven't had a square meal for two weeks, and I sure was hungry," Walter explained. "So I thought I'd steal something and hock it to buy some food with."

Angry Squirrels Lick Bullying Hound Dog

Boston.—Timid squirrels which for years have lived in the yard of Harvard university, recently licked a 20-pound hound dog which had been making life miserable for them for some time.

This dog attacked one of the squirrels while it was gathering nuts. Immediately half a dozen other squirrels ran to the rescue. When the battle ended the dog was so badly bitten and scratched that it had to be taken to a veterinary. The squirrels fled up trees when the police approached.

Gossip Causes Suicide

Anderson, Ind.—Gossip led Miss Myrtle Manis, twenty-one, to commit suicide by drinking carbolic acid, according to a farewell note the girl left, stating that all that had been said about her was not true.

Still Worse

Dora—I think Mary is mean! I showed her my engagement ring and she said it was always too tight for her.

Gladys—Yes, that's exactly what she said to me last summer when I was wearing it.

Beyond Harm

Attendant (at show for adults only)—I'm sorry, madam, but you can't take your dog in with you.

Lady—Don't be so ridiculous. Why Tootsy's over five and has quite a big family.—Passing Show.

HOG PRICES FOR 1925 GIVE FARMERS PROFITABLE YEAR

Hog prices in 1925, according to market reports obtained by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation, have been the highest since 1920 and the number of hogs slaughtered nearly 20 per cent less than in 1924 and 1923, when production was at a record level. With prices approximately 50 per cent higher this year than last year, hog producers have had an especially profitable season. The range of prices has run from $10.00 to almost $14.50 per hundred pounds, the peaks being reached in March, July and September.

Domestic consumptive demand has been keen throughout the year in spite of higher retail prices for pork products. Exports have been the smallest in a number of years.

The ratio between prices of hogs and corn prices turned favorably for the feeder last spring and is now the best that it has been since 1922. Last spring's pig crop in the corn belt, which is now coming on the market, was estimated to be 10.6 per cent less than the pig crop of the spring of 1924. This indicates that rather high prices are likely to be maintained during most of the 1926 season, unless a very large crop of hogs is produced and pushed rapidly into the markets. Excepting the months of January and February, receipts at the eleven leading markets of the country, have gone below the 675,000 level and from June to October have been below the 550,000 mark.

DINNERBELL RADIO FORUM HELPS FARMER PROGRESS

EVERY day at noon the R. F. D. dinnerbell rings out over WLS, the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation station, Chicago, calling the farmers of the country to listen in on the farm programs of the Foundation. R. F. D. represents the Radio Farmers' Democracy, composed of WLS farm radio fans, who are given the benefit of practical talks on all phases of farming by noted agricultural leaders, receive advance information on the markets and are notified of the weather conditions to enable them to protect their crops. That the farmers have benefited in dollars and cents by radio farm information is shown by the letters received by the thousands by Fred L. Petty, WLS farm editor, in which they tell of making and saving money by advance data on the markets. The "Farm Question Box," presided over by E. B. Heaton, farm adviser of the Foundation, answers by radio and mail to all the problems by which the farmers are confronted. Music and entertainment also form part of the programs. For the farmers who cannot listen in at noon, the R. F. D. programs are broadcast in the evening and once a week Junior R. F. D. roundup for the boys and girls of the country is broadcast from this station.

HONK, HONK, I'M ON THE AIR PULL OVER TO THE CURB!

"HONK, HONK, I'm on the air—pull over to the curb." This is the salutation which greets radio fans who listen in on WBBM, the Stewart-Warner station, when Nate Caldwell, the station's announcer starts the programs. Caldwell has an automobile horn which he honks to summon his radio listeners, the same as George D. Hay used his locomotive whistle for the "WLS Unlimited" when he was announcer for WLS.

"How's your speedometer?" asks the genial Nate. "All right? Then let's go," and the evening's radio entertainment of WBBM is on.

CAPT. HAWK'S CONDITION

The veterans all over the United States are much interested in the condition of Capt. E. L. Hawk, of Sacramento, Calif., who is the most active and useful veteran on the Pacific Coast. He has always been warmly interested in the Grand Army of the Republic. He attends every National Encampment, and one of his specific acts was his purchase of the ground on which his regiment, the 114th Ohio, was organized.

At Grand Rapids there was universal sorrow from the report of his comrades from California that Comrade Hawk was in the hospital to undergo a serious operation, from which they felt he would not survive. In answer to our personal inquiry recently as to his condition he writes us a letter, from which the following are excerpts:

"I have many, many letters from friends asking me to let them know of my condition, but so far I have not answered one.

I have now been home two months, after three months of hospital experience, the first time in a hospital in 62 years; my only other such experience being three weeks in Gayosa Hospital, in Memphis, immediately after the surrender of Vicksburg in July, 1863.

I believe that I can now say that I am well again. I have tried to be a perfect patient, believing that what is worth doing is worth doing well. Now, for two weeks past I am allowed to eat at will, while previously for many weeks it was milk, toast, rice and eggs. I have not given an hour a day to business, but believe that now I am in fit condition.

I expect to do all I can for my comrades of this Department and am assured that this successful operation which I have undergone will make me in better condition to do so.

Mrs. Hawk has been suffering from nervous prostration for a few months past, but is improving, the one nurse taking care of us both.

I regretted at the time that I was compelled to withdraw from the race for Commander-in-Chief, but now I am well satisfied, as had I been successful I would not have been able for months to attend to the duties. A kind Providence has been good to me, and so have my comrades. —Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

WASHINGTON SPECIALS

Washington, Feb. 12.—(UP.)—The Republican-Democratic coalition tax bill nearing final adoption in the senate, is a "multi-millionaire subsidy," Senator Howell, Nebraska, Republican, told the senate today in the opening of the final fight of the group opposing the bill. "This bill means government favors for those with incomes over $100,000" Howell said. "The poor men will pay for it."

Here are the conditions of the settlement of the longest anthracite coal strike, which started last September 1, as announced by Secretary of Labor Davis today:

- 1—A five year wage contract, with no increase in pay over the present schedules.
- 2—A modified check-off system of collecting union dues from the pay of miners.
- 3—A provision that changes in the wage scale may be made through mutual agreement at any time.
- 4—Arbitration is eliminated as a method of settling disputes, collective bargaining being substituted.

VITRIFIED BRICK

Making Results of Highly Technical Knowledge.

While some of the knowledge of how to make vitrified paving brick is due to former clay working chemists who lived many centuries ago, present-day clay working chemists who direct the making of paving brick, select their shale, grind it, mass it with proper solvents, "fiber" and die-mould the mass under hydraulic pressure, and then vitrify the brick with graduated heat, with the same care and scientific precision employed by chemists who direct the manufacture of valuable toxins, serums and medicinal products. Some of these are graduates from the foremost technical schools of Europe and America. Some have gained their knowledge from experience, guided by long and careful study of reliable text-books, together with personal instructions by men with finished educations in this science.

All of them must be competent, because all paving brick is now tested twice—once when the brick comes out of the kiln, and again before it is laid on the street or highway. This insures the brick going in the job in perfect condition, so neither incompetent inspection or careless work by floating laborers that contractors are often forced to employ can spoil the pavement. Because of this double testing, almost uniform reports of "No wear evident" are being received from all cities where brick pavements have been laid during the past fifteen years.

MURDERER IS IDENTIFIED BY BERTILLON SYSTEM

Danville, Ill., Feb. 13.—(UP.)—Luke O'Neill spent $1,000 to have his face altered in order to avoid detection but he neglected the most certain means of identification—his finger tips. Today O'Neill is in the custody of Danville authorities who claim he has confessed the murder of Catherine Gore in New York, Sept. 13, 1925.

O'Neill was arrested for the theft of an automobile in St. Louis. His finger prints were taken as a matter of jail routine but an alert officer noted the similarity between the prints and those contained in a New York police bulletin concerning the murder of Miss Gore. Confronted with this evidence O'Neill confessed. O'Neill said he had been traveling about the middle-west as "Edgar Vance" after spending $1,000 for facial operations so that he would not be recognized.

Sour Milk Gingerbread.

Add two level teaspoonfuls of bicarbonate of soda to a cupful of sour milk and turn it into a cupful of heavy dark molasses. Sift in two and a quarter cupfuls of flour, a half teaspoonful of salt, and three level teaspoonfuls of ground ginger. Add a half cupful of melted butter, melted over hot water and strained, pour in buttered shallow pan, and bake for twenty-five minutes in a medium oven. A teaspoonful of vanilla is often added and improves the flavor.

Sour Cream Salad Dressing

Take a cupful of sour cream and add to it a tablespoonful of sugar, a half teaspoonful of salt, three tablespoonfuls of vinegar, and a half teaspoonful of powdered dried mint leaves. Mix well and add a half salt spoonful of cayenne. This recipe is excellent with a cucumber salad.

SAFELY HARVEST BUMPER LAW CROP

State Legislatures Put 13,000 New Statutes on the Books.

New York.—One of the Founding Fathers, in the debate on the Constitution of the United States, confessed that "a voluminous code of laws is one of the inconveniences necessarily connected with the advantages of free government." Had he foreseen how voluminous it was to become he would hardly have been satisfied with so mild a word as "inconvenience," for the biennial output which reaches floodtide in the "old" years when nearly all the state legislatures are in session, passes understanding. Just now we are observing the efforts of some forty states, including New York, to adjust themselves to more than 13,000 new statutes.

Thirteen thousand plus! The mere size of the printing bill is enough to give every taxpayer pause. The cost in clerical work, committee fees, salary of legislators, test cases in the courts, prosecution and civil litigation is beyond calculation. But, aside from the pressure upon the pocket nerve, almost all these laws regulate in some way business conduct or personal deportment and thus irritate nerves of another kind.

Much of this stupendous flood of legal verbiage is mere tinkering with existing codes. Every legislature writes its own Sartor Resartus; it repatches the patched fabric of the law, if not always dexterously, at least industriously and with gusto. Those who have attended sessions may have heard the clerk droning: "This is an act entitled an act to amend an act entitled an act to amend an act—" and so on to the ninth degree of amendment. To attend one of these sessions is a good lesson in what Elihu Root has called organized self-control. The electorate can learn best in the schoolhouse of its state capitals how its representatives function.

Fashions in Laws.

In every legislative gathering laws are offered which affect education, health, banking and railroads. These are familiar standbys. They are the teething rings on which thousands of legislators have cut their first teeth. But there is fashion in laws as in garments and bobs; and laws aimed at the motorist are becoming almost passe now that motion pictures may be censored and beauty parlors regulated. Senator Wray of the state of Washington, for instance, is the proud parent of a law authorizing schools for the teaching of the art of hairdressing and facial massage, a bill licensing persons to carry on such practice and prescribing penalties for violation. The radio, which ignores state boundaries, is a little beyond or above the state legislator; but regulation of the hours during which voices caught from the air may be turned loose upon the neighborhood are the dernier cri in legislation.

And there is always a crop of measures which may be classed as oddities. Connecticut debated with spirit a measure intended to impose a tax of $4 on each bachelor, spinster and alien. Taxation of unwedded voters is no new thing, but to jump them with aliens betrays that the author of the law regards them as strange and outlandish. The majority, however, overrode this construction of single blessedness. Iowa, in its zeal for prohibition, adopted a measure intended to prevent the sale of a kind of canned heat, for fear that the alcohol in the device would be diverted to unholy purposes.

Arizona, which is a quiet state, demanded that railroads equip their locomotives with automatic bell-ringers. Among a great many states in which taxes of various sorts were proposed on cigarettes, Tennessee adopted a sales tax of 10 per cent. Illinois offered a reward of $1,000 to any man, woman or child capturing or killing a bull; robber; and Kansas taxed the use—not the sale—of gasoline for any purpose except a farm tractor.

Missouri provided that butcher shops selling both kosher and non-kosher meats should so stipulate in their window signs and advertising; and Ohio passed a law requiring that every public school teacher must read aloud daily ten verses from the Bible, without comment. This measure was vetoed by the governor.

Concern about education is invariably acute among our legislators. The ten Biblical verses in Ohio were not alone; in another state a bill was offered providing for the memorizing of the Ten Commandments. There was another bill requiring that study of the Constitution of the United States and of the state should be a prerequisite of graduation, not only from public but private schools.

Laws to Conserve Patriotism.

The battle over the Americanization of history is still waging merrily here and there. In one bill, for instance, it was provided that any school teacher speaking slightly of the Republic, its founders or the Constitution should be dismissed; and, further, that the textbooks on history and civil government should stress adequately "the services rendered by the men who achieved our national Independence . . . and preserved the Union."

But there is little of the unusual about such measures. The crop is fairly uniform and varies only in that it tends to get larger and larger as time goes on. The chief ingenuity is exhibited in devising new methods of taxation. The income tax is becoming more and more popular, and there are many states which tax the sale of gasoline, chewing gum and smoking tobacco. Some now have a state automobile fund, to which every owner of a motor vehicle must contribute, wherefrom persons injured in accidents are to receive damages.

It must be remembered that the 13,000 measures mentioned, were actually enacted. More than three as many went into the legislative hopper from the hands of earnest legislators. The percentage of enactments was, indeed, without precedent. There are two ways to judge a state legislature; first, by the number of bills introduced; second, by the number which survive committee pitfalls and the gauntlet of debate. New York, for instance, was the Abou Ben Adhem of the states in the number of measures offered, leading with 3,186; but only 686 of them became law, whereas in North Carolina, of only 1,773 offered 1,173 were enacted.

The actual number of bills passed in 38 of these states was 13,018. Texas, perhaps preoccupied with the Fergusons, did not make any return to the National Industrial council, which reported the legislative crop; and Governor Hartley of Washington resorted to the unusual expedient of a split session, in order to give the legislators time to think over what they had done at the first gathering. During the first session the Washington legislators adopted but 34 of 128 bills offered.

The National Industrial council was organized in 1907 by the National Association of Manufacturers to oppose the enactment of laws likely to affect business unfavorably. Commenting on the new crop of statutes, M. J. Hickey, assistant secretary of the council, said that "the state legislatures were constantly finding new ways of getting revenue, thus piling up the costs of government and imposing constantly heavier taxes."

Several states adopted the executive budget during the year, and others undertook a reorganization of the executive departments.—New York Times.

Cite Man Who Lived to 152 in Long-Life Drive

London.—The memory of Thomas Parr, who set England's standard of longevity by living to be 152 years old, is being invoked in a campaign by the Long Life society in favor of simple living. The object lesson, however, is found as much in the cause of his death as in the matter of his living.

"Old Parr" lived under ten English monarchs, from 1483 to 1635, and the authenticity of the record is attested by a slab in Westminster abbey, where England's great are remembered.

Until nearly the end of his life he lived on the simplest fare, whole-grain bread, milk, cheese and fruit, and at 120 he was hale enough to marry a second time. But when he reached 152 his fame reached the ears of King Charles I, who invited him to London and feasted him so that he died.

His slab in Westminster is cited by the Long Life society "as a warning to those who suddenly and drastically alter the habits of a lifetime."

Polar Flyers to Study Bird Flight Mystery

New York.—Solution of an Arctic riddle that has fascinated explorers since first they began penetrating the polar regions will be sought by Capt. George H. Wilkins and his companions on their proposed 1,900-mile non-stop flight next spring over the top of the world.

The riddle, briefly, has been: "Where do the birds go when they keep on going north?"

Belief that land must exist somewhere beyond the farthest point reached by man exists, and Captain Wilkins will fly next year in an attempt to go from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Spitzbergen. If land is discovered it will be claimed in the name of the United States.

The Detroit Aviation society, of which Henry Ford's chief engineer is president, is backing the expedition with the American Geographical society. Government aid, and the use of Lieutenants John A. Macready and James H. Doolittle, crack army aviators, has been asked.

Thieves Make Paste Gems Florida Vogue

West Palm Beach, Fla. — Palm Beach, queen of the winter store whirl, has exalted the dime-store diamond. Paste pearls and sparkling plate-glass diamonds will glitter at social functions this winter.

Synthetic gems will be the rage in Palm Beach this season. And all because sneak thieves have been reported active in the winter resort almost as soon as the season opened. It became known that the winter home of Mr. and Mrs. Horace H. Work, Madison, N. J., had been entered by thieves. A watch, some jewelry and some clothing belonging to the second butler, were taken.

A dozen of the colony's wealthiest and most prominent social leaders have placed their gems in banks for safekeeping. It was reported. Fewer real jewels are to glisten in Palm Beach this season than in any previous winter.

Paint Saves Historic Mansion

THE fine old mansion at Mt. Vernon, which was the home of George Washington from 1761 to 1799, and which is visited by more than 125,000 persons a year, from all parts of the world, was its splendid state of preservation due to paint protection administered at regular intervals. Since it was purchased from a descendant of Washington, in 1860, by the Mt. Vernon Ladies' Association of the Union, the historic old house has been thoroughly re-painted at regular periods, thus saving it from the wear and tear of time and the elements.

Lawrence Washington, a half-brother of George, built the middle portion of the present edifice in 1743. Coming to George Washington by inheritance in 1761, he added the library portion and overlaid the entire house with a new covering of thick boards, which he had painted white and paneled to resemble cut and dressed stone. This effect of stone is still maintained by blowing white sand with machinery for the purpose, on the freshly painted surface. There is a standing order for the re-painting of Mt. Vernon at definite intervals. In its restored and carefully preserved state, it is a national monument of which the country is and may well be proud.

Three-Eyed Creatures

Some of the islands off the coast of New Zealand are the home of curious creatures known as tuateras, which are supposed to be the oldest living type of animal. They are distinguished by a quaint organ on the top of the head, known as the pineal gland, which is in reality a third eye.

Stock-Trading Term

A street certificate is the stockbroker's name for a certificate of stock, or other similar paper, which has been transferred in blank. A certificate of this kind may be passed from hand to hand without further indorsement or transfer upon the books of the company. It must have the requisites set forth under "Good Delivery."

Business Propaganda

You can't always tell about anything; maybe there is a sleeper in the statement, and just as like as not the man who broadcast the opinion that pedestrians have the right of way and don't have to hop around to avoid being run over by a motorcar is an attorney who is looking for damage suits to settle.—Albany Press.

Cutting Glass Under Water

Submerging glass under water does not necessarily mean that it will cut easier, but it is much less likely to crack than when cut in air. The cutting sets up vibrations in the glass which have a tendency to crack it. These vibrations are greatly reduced if the glass is placed under water during the cutting process.
